The Mirror

Bates College
Lewiston, Maine

Oft times at night I light my pipe,
And watch the glowing grates;

The shadows fall while I recall
Each dream of dear old Bates – –

Our Story

Each fair co-ed

Each lesson read

Each comrade's friendliness

Each victory comes back to me

Each dream brings happiness

To Buck

We of '41 have a big job ahead of us. As we venture out from our campus community, we feel the harsh realities of a troubled world bearing down upon us. If we're going to make any progress in this larger community, we'll have to hit the line hard. We are fortunate in having such a man as you, Coach Spinks, to play blocking back for us in this game of life. Many of us will follow your lead into the military service, but all of us will profit from the spirit of sportmanship, courage, and self-sacrifice which you have always shown. And so, "Captain Buck," we salute you!

Place: Bates Campus

Time: Commencement Week, 1966

Cast: Eddie and Betty Bates

Well, if it isn't Eddie. I knew you'd be back for our Twenty Fifth.

Hello, Betty. Haven't seen you for ages. How's the world been treating you?

Oh, the best. And you? I guess you're right on top of the world now—president of the Richkid bank, no less. Applying some of J. Murray's dismally scientific theories, I suppose?

Yes, and believe it or not, they work. Say, you're not doing so bad yourself—head lady in the Cheapstuff Department Store of New York, so I hear. By the way, do you know what any of the other Forty Oners have been doing since graduation?

Yes, Ed, I've just been looking through the latest copy of the Alumnus. Most of our classmates are listed in it along with their jobs and other accomplishments. It's interesting to see how some of the boys and girls of '41 turned out. Just about every kind of occupation is represented. There are educators, social workers, doctors, lawyers, research workers, salesmen, writers, and ministers, to mention a few.

I'll bet I can name some who became teachers and professors. How about Bobbie Abbott, Ginny Yeomans, Kay Curry, Ruth Sanford, Don Russell, Lloyd Sinclair, and Marion Thomas?

Right you are. Then there's Maizie Kingston, Poppy Giles, Barb Sullivan, Velna Adams, Selma Bliss, Alice Morrill, Winnie Hansen, Louis Hanley, Dee Hunt, Jack McLeod, Jan McCaw, Anna Schmoyer, Frankie Belt, and Martha Hutchins. They're setting the pace in high schools and colleges all over the country. I imagine the pointers they picked up at Bates from R. A. F. MacDonald and Ray Kendall are coming in mighty handy now.

And how about coaches? Our class was well known for its athletes, so we must be pretty well represented. I hear that Art Belliveau has been directing athletics in some large college since he retired from big league baseball. Are there any others mentioned there?

Let's see; besides Art, there's Mike Buccigross, Don Webster, Dick Thompson, Johnny Daikus, Tiny Boothby, Harry Gorman, Jim O'Sullivan, Al Topham, and Brud Witty.

I'll bet they're turning out some he-men athletes. They certainly could take care of themselves back in '41.

Then under the heading of "Social Workers" are these familiar names: Fran Wallace, Jo Lowther, Diddy Scranton, Jan McLean, Dot Stead, Helene Woodward, Hope Newman, Tom Knowles, and Brud Oberst. I remember when they used to visit various reform schools, prisons, poor farms and such with Andy Myhrman. Now they have a chance to do something about conditions which they tsh-tsh'ed as undergraduates.

Along that same line, there must be some ministers among our number. We used to call C. Alfred Baulch "the reverend." Has he lived up to that name?

Yes, Al is a preacher now, along with Morgan Porteus, Art Tiffany, and Art Blowen.

There were others who went in for public speaking of one sort or another in our class.

Class of 1941

HONOR CANDIDATES

What are they doing now?

Well, Fred Whitten, Bill Lever, Dick Lovelace, and Warren Drury have been spending their eloquence as salesmen of everything from insurance to books. Dave Jennings, Dwight DeWitt, Noah Edminster, and Bill Davis have been applying Pa Gould's principles as lawyers. The names of Connie Roy, Betty Swann, and Rowena Fairchild are still flashing among the lights of Broadway. We also have some performers in the musical field. Paul Wright, Stan Smith, "Pete" Mendall, Carol Storm, Stella Clifford, Jack Morris, and Joe Millerick are devoting themselves to some type of musical endeavor. Expression in another form, painting, is the business of Al Sawyer and Cynthia Foster.

And what are our literary students up to these days?

According to this account, several have become veteran fourth-estaters. Brooks Hamilton now pounds out editorials for a big city daily. Netta Barrus runs a feature column out in Hollywood. Ed Leonard writes up commentaries on world affairs. Frank Brown, now a foreign correspondent, just finished a book called "Inside South America." Then we have Les Warren, Jack Prokop, and Stan Banks as contributors to periodicals. Listed as research workers are such brain-trusters as Ed Booth, Dick Dearborn, Nancy Field, and Dave Weeks. Business men include Dick Hoag, George Coorssen, Dick Wall, Herm Tripp, Dick Raymond and Clint Forstrom in their ranks.

So far we've seen how the A. B. students are making a living. What about the other side of the campus? They certainly deserve success for the many hours they spent in the labs. I remember we used to say that Hedge and Carnegie must have been the inspiration for "The Light That Never Fails."

Yes, those B.S. grads should have gone places—and they did. Holding high positions in industrial chemistry are the following: Stan Austin, Fin Cogswell, Perry Jameson, John Howarth, Joe Houston, Frank Bennett, and Willy Mills. Working in biological research laboratories are Mary Bullard, Dotty Dole, Jean Atwater, Peg Hubbard, Charlie Lovely, Beth Potter, Beckie Finnie, and Charlotte Dolloff. We also have a couple of M.D.'s in our midst in the person of Bob Gorfine and Gerard Morin.

That seems to be all whose occupations are recorded here in the Alumnus, but I'll bet the rest of the class is making itself heard from, too. I can just see our mystical Monty Moses baffling audiences all over the world with his "quicker-than-the-eye" line. Irv Fisher, Ralph Caswell, and Clyde Glover are no doubt forest rangers in some of our national parks. Ranking high among glamour boys are probably our lady-killers, George Neice, Hal Beattie, Johnny Anderson, Schwert Morris, and Jim Walsh. Certain feminine Forty Oners are undoubtedly career women now. I imagine some of the following would fall in this group: Peg White, Gale Rice, Kitty Winne, Marilyn Miller, Daisy Puranen, and Milly Brown.

Our class has certainly made a name for itself, hasn't it, Ed? It has carried on the old tradition that "in every field of action, men of Bates have won a place."

Yes, that's true. But we don't want to emphasize occupations too much. Whether Bates has been performing its duty faithfully, depends on whether its graduates are well-balanced, creative citizens. Remember how we swarmed onto the campus in September, 1937 from all corners of New England? We were plenty green then. We became a part of a new group in a new community—the Class of 1941 at Bates College. Then for four years we proceeded to absorb the many aspects of the particular culture of Bates as well as the Bates version of a larger culture. The diploma we earned is a symbol of the broad and solid foundation we built to meet life's challenges. We had learned how to get more out of the world and how to give more to the world.

Yes, that's certainly right, and we didn't appreciate, as undergraduates, how much we were getting out of college. But from this long range perspective of twenty-five years, it is easy to see that "we owe a debt to Bates that never can be paid." And not only did the four year stay develop our personalities, it also provided us with many pleasant memories to reflect upon for the rest of our lives. Traditions, friendships, accomplishments, big events, and little incidents—they all become more precious with the years.

Many of these memories are colored somewhat by what was going on outside of the campus at the time. We certainly had an eventful historical setting for our college careers. The world had just gone through its most serious depression; international relations became tense and finally developed into the most widespread war in history; our country responded by upsetting tradition with a third-term election of F. D. R. and setting out on an ambitious program of national defense which embraced "hemisphere solidarity," "bundles for Britain," and conscription of men and machines. Bates was talking these matters over in chapel, classroom, and dorm; exchange students were replaced by refugee students; an aviation course was begun on campus; yes, and the college kept in step with the times even further—it set up its own propaganda ministry.

But we weren't always in such a belligerent mood. Mount David was the scene of other and more friendly activity. Campus romances were in abundance. Our class provided ample proof for the old claim that Bates is a "match factory." Remember these pairs: Orrin and Ruth, Bob and Fran, Johnny and Dotty, Fred and Marge, Pete and Jean, Jim and Ruth, John and Fran, Leo and Jeanne. I wonder if they knew that Bates was the first co-ed college in New England.

Then we had our informal groups, among the most notable of these was the "Discus & Ski Club." This group presented a colorful and successful Mayoralty campaign for "Little King Smith." Its many other doings were cloaked in secret ceremony.

Then we had our honorary groups. Cum laude was won by Hope Newman, David Weeks, Leslie Warren, Stanton Smith, Richard Dearborn, and Frank Bennett. Our Phi Beta Kappas were Paul Wright, Leslie Warren, Stanton Smith, Dwight De Witt, Richard Dearborn, Finley Cogswell, Edward Booth, Frank Bennett, Dorothy Dole, Nancy Field, Edith Hunt, Joanne Lowther, Marjorie Moulton, and Hope Newman. Men selected to College Club were Arthur Belliveau, Ralph Caswell, Harry Gorman, John Haskell, Donald Webster, Erle Witty, Stanton Smith, Finley Cogswell, and Paul Wright. Women honored by the Bates Key were Joanne Lowther, Barbara Abbott, Kathleen Curry, Marguerite Mendall, Gale Rice, Frances Wallace, Harriet White, Helene Woodward and Virginia Yeomans.

Of course, college life wouldn't be college life if there wasn't a little cain raised once in a while. I remember how the boys succeeded in getting new steel bleachers for the athletic field by burning down the old grandstand (or did they?). Then there was the unsuccessful attempt to arouse students to strike for more lenient chapel requirements. There were many other less sensational "off the record" accomplishments credited to our period too. I guess our class did its share of wearing down the much-worn carpets in the offices of Prexy, Harry Rowe, Dean Clark, and Norm Ross.

We were a lucky class in certain ways, though. We were honored by having genial "Dutchy" Leonard graduate from his long teaching career along with us. We were the last class to recite "I saw your father this morning" for Prof. Rob. We enjoyed the privilege of associating with that grand old classicist, "Goosey" Chase, before he was called away. You'd have to go a long way to find such fine men as these.

Our class was also fortunate in being able to help celebrate the Seventy-fifth Anniversary of the college and in dedicating a new men's dormitory. And, oh yes, we mustn't forget how we just missed a new system of examinations called "comprehensives." We certainly were a lucky class.

Yes, we have a lot to be thankful for. We spent four of the most important years of our lives in college, and because we elected Bates, they were four of the best years of our lives. That's why we're so anxious to get back for the reunions like this twenty-fifth one. It's quite a thrill to return to what we used to call our "ivy-covered nook in Vacationland." We are thus able to stimulate many pleasing dreams and have a chance to drink a toast to "Bates and all she means to us."

STUDENT COUNCIL
SECOND ROW: Tetlow, McLauthlin, M. Thompson. FIRST ROW: James, R. Thompson, Donovan, Haskell; Pres.:, Witty, German, Mabee

Our Administrators

DEMOCRACY in action is typified by the two student governing organizations on campus. All problems involving students—either in their relations with one another, with the faculty and administration, or with outside interests—come under the jurisdiction of these boards.

The Student Council is the men's administrative organization. It strives to sound out wants and opinions at the bi-monthly assemblies which it sponsors. Thus it is able to formulate plans and policies in accordance with popular will. The work of the Council may be divided into ordinary duties and innovations.

Regular activities are the supervision of: elections, assemblies, Freshman Rules, smoke walks, weekly chapel programs, a Red Cross drive, intramural athletics, cheerleading, rallies, special student trains, co-ed parties, men's "coffees," Sunday tennis, and the Mayoralty Campaign. Under the leadership of President John Haskell '41, some changes have been made this year in these functions. Freshman rules were completely revised; more cheerleaders were provided and regulated; relations with local newspapers were improved by the invitation of reporters to the "coffees."

The Council has also worked on several new projects. Foremost among these is the plan by which professors are required to give at least one week's notice before hour-exams. A faculty committee is investigating the situation and further developments are expected, perhaps in the form of an exam schedule for an entire semester. Another accomplishment is the compilation of information received from recent Bates graduates concerning various graduate schools. The 1940–41 Council has also taken preliminary steps toward changing the chapel system, has bought a new banner for the college, has investigated the possibilities of student cooperatives, and has written up an outline of curricular troubles.

Women's activities are directed by the Student Government Board. Organized largely on the basis of dormitory representation, and working through House Councils, it insures close contact with every co-ed. Rules and regulations are not authoritatively enforced from above, though, but are observed according to individual responsibility under the Honor System. This is considered superior to demerit and other penal plans in that it tends to bring the more natural forces of social pressure into play.

The cooperation of the women in supporting this system has led to many liberal developments. This year's "Stu G," headed by Gale Rice '41, has been particularly active in this respect. Freshmen were granted more "pers" and were permitted to entertain and co-educate on Saturday nights. Seniors were allowed two eleven o'clock pers a week. All classes were given until twelve o'clock on Winter Carnival Week-End. Smoking at football games, off-campus dancing, use of the Union for open houses on Friday nights and for smoking on Sunday mornings—these are some more of the advances made.

Other highlights of the year were the Social Usage tests given to all women, a series of talks on personality by Miss Elizabeth Osborne, the drawing up of a general seating arrangement for the dining room, the innovation of a plan to allow local co-eds to stay on campus over night, and the publishing of a directory containing addresses and phone numbers of all students and faculty. The regular social events were sponsored again: Mothers' Week-End, in conjunction with the C. A. and W. A. A.; Sunday Teas; Coffees; and a Banquet.

Gale Rice, President of Student Government; John Haskell, Pres. of Studeut Council.

An important development of the year in student government circles was the creation of a Student-Administration Conference Committee, comprised of Mr. Rowe, Dean Clark, and representatives from both the men's and the women's governing bodies. This group is not designed to take away any power from the regular boards, but deals only with problems referred to it by them. An example of this is the solution of the hour-exam question, the chief work done by the Committee this year; this was recommended for consideration by the Council. The main function of the new set-up is the providing of a means for rapidly reaching an understanding between students and administration.

Governing organizations are as indispensable to the campus community as they are to any other community. Members benefit from the experience they receive in planning, leading, and cooperating. All students profit from the great number of accomplishments of the groups. The system operates as a practical school of citizenship training.

Our Speakers

ONE of the distinctive marks of Bates is the high place it occupies in the field of forensics. The broad program carried on serves to spread the name and fame of the college by giving many outsiders an introduction to Bates even before they see the campus.

All forensic activities are supervised by the Debating Council, under the guidance of Brooks Quimby '18. In the interests of efficiency, this group meets but rarely, entrusting its affairs largely to the executive officers. Harriet White '41 was president this year; David Jennings '41, secretary. Intercollegiate debates for men and women are arranged by the Council through the respective managers; Sumner Levin '42 and Elizabeth Swann '41 were in charge this year.

The Men's Varsity opened its schedule with the Universities of Maine and Vermont and Middlebury College on the question of increased federal power. A Yale team, visiting the campus in December, to debate on a six-year presidential term, lost a 3–0 decision to the Bates speakers. Immediate declaration of war was discussed with Bowdoin, Dartmouth, and Muhlenberg. A radio debate with Rollins College of Florida on the proposition "That Maine is the ideal vacationland," was broadcast from Station WOR in New York. A Bates-Colby debate was presented over WCSH, and a debate with Redlands on universal military training was transcribed for radio presentation.

The Women's Varsity included a trip to Vermont for debates with Middlebury and the state university on the federal power topic and a visit to the University of Maine to discuss the merits of a Western Hemisphere union.

Co-educational teams were active again this year as in the past. The outstanding contest of this type was the international debate with the University of New Brunswick on political union of the United States and Canada. Similar teams met the University of New Hampshire, Boston College, and Syracuse University.

But the Council does not confine its activities to the field of debate. In December, Wesleyan students took part here in a panel discussion on Pan-American policy. The first award in the Junior-Senior Prize Speaking this year went to Charles Buck '42. In the Bates Oratorical Contest, Harriet White won first prize and went on to take top honors in the state contest. Bates sent representatives to two model congresses during the spring vacation. At the congress in Chicago sponsored by Delta Sigma Rho, National Forensic Honor Society, Miss White served as Clerk, the highest office to which a woman was elected. At a congress held on the Rhode Island State campus, David Nichols '42 tied with a Princeton representative as the most effective member of his house.

The Speakers' Bureau is an important project of the Council, although its membership is not limited to debaters. Supplying assembly programs, plays, debates, and speeches on a variety of topics to outside audiences, it provides at once an excellent advertising medium for the college and valuable experience for the students participating. "Bates on the Air," a weekly broadcast over Station WCOU was inaugurated this year, and offers a program under the direction of the radio speech class.

Another function of the Council is the direction of interscholastic debating leagues for Maine and New Hampshire and the tournament for New England preparatory schools. For the benefit of these debaters, the Council continued a series of debate clinics during the fall months.

All of these forensic activities serve to give real significance to the old saying that "Bates put the 'bate' in debate."

Our Writers

LITERARY endeavors of a wide variety are encouraged at Bates. Would-be authors, editors, poets, and columnists receive valuable training from their work on the four campus publications. Their efforts also serve the rest of the college by providing a record of the progress made in all lines of activity.

The Publishing Association supervises all publications. This organization includes every student on its membership roll, but a board of directors does the administrative work. Five students, elected from the junior and senior classes, together with three faculty advisers, make up the board. Meetings are mainly concerned with staff appointments, budgets, or policies of the publications.

The Student, college newspaper, reports campus news and opinions in its weekly editions. Announcement of coming events, explanation of administration policies, discussion of campus and other problems, and chronicling of events for future reference—these are the chief functions of the paper. Editorials, news-stories, feature articles, and sport write-ups all have their place. In performing these duties, staff members receive practical experience which may well lead to careers in journalism. Some of the outstanding editions of the past year were those put out for Back-to-Bates Week End, Winter Carnival, and the all-college elections.

The Garnet is a literary magazine, published twice a year. Its essays, short stories, and poems represent student opinions on events and problems of the day. Many of this year's articles, as to be expected, dealt with some aspect of the war. Such a "magazine of ideas" not only stimulates thinking and develops creative ability among the students, but it also preserves in permanent form the results of these efforts.

personalities is the service performed by the Mirror, college yearbook. It annually reflects life at Bates as experienced by a particular group of people during a paticular period of time. Although the publication is treasured most by members of the graduating class, its depiction of Bates traditions makes it of interest to the whole college community—alumni, underclassmen, faculty, and friends. Being essentially a memory book, its value should increase with its age. This realization has led the 1941 staff to try to make this year's annual one that will wear well. Informality is the keynote; pictorial representation is featured. Compactness and completeness have been aimed at.

Campus doings are approached from still another angle by the Buffoon, student humor magazine. Light poetry and prose, along with snapshots and cartoons, give students and professors a periodical opportunity to sit back and smile at themselves and their friends. In order to arrange the contributions in a unified pattern, each issue is built around a central theme.

Those who take part in preparing these publications are the historians of the college. They have the privilege and satisfaction of writing down for posterity a chapter or two in the story of Bates.

Our Musicians

MUSICALLY inclined students have ample opportunity to pursue their art at Bates. Under the direction of Seldon T. Crafts, the various organizations offer a widely diversified program, which provides not only training and recreation for the participants, but also entertainment for the rest of the campus.

Those who wish to express their Euterpean talents in vocal form find two groups functioning in their behalf. The College Choir, which limits itself to religious music, presents two chapel programs a week and performs at Vesper Services. The Choral Society has classical as well as semi-classical, secular as well as religious music in its repertoire. The men of this organization sometimes appear separately as the Men's Glee Club.

Instrumental music of three varieties is provided for. Symphonic melodies are featured by the Orphic Society. Marches to bolster student morale at games and rallies are furnished by the Band, which now sports colorful uniforms and streamlined drill formations. Rendition of the latest popular dance ballads is the forte of the Bobcats, led this year by Stanton Smith, '41.

The MacFarlane Club cultivates appreciation for good music among its members, and cooperates with other musical clubs in planning their public appearances.

Highlights of the past year were: the annual Pop Concert, a January formal dance, at which the musical clubs carried out a Latin American theme; the Band Concert, an innovation this year; and the Spring Concert, a fitting finale to the year's activities. These, along with the less formal outside engagements, show the importance of the musical organizations as spreaders of good will and Bates spirit, through the effective medium of the universal language.

Our Actors

HATHORN'S Little Theater has been the scene of much ado about many things this year, as in the past. People, scripts, and properties—these have been the raw materials. Casting, rehearsals, and arrangements—these have been the production machinery. "Squaring the Circle," "Caste," "Escape," and "Taming the Shrew,"—these were the finished goods. General manager of the corporation is Miss Lavinia Schaeffer; her assistant, Miss Lydia Frank.

Organized support for this repeated cycle of planning and performing is furnished by two groups. The function of the Heelers is largely as a recruiting and training agency. Actors and backstage workers alike receive practical experience from production of frequent one-act plays. On the theoretical side, talks about various aspects of the theater and reviews of recent plays are given. Those who show the most interest and ability in carrying out these assignments are promoted to the Robinson Players. The purpose of this organization—to state it bluntly—is the production of plays. Members, already well-versed in fundamentals, are able to concentrate their efforts on the polishing up of techniques, devoting especial attention to interpretations of the different types of roles which appear in the four major plays.

The first presentation of the current year was "Squaring the Circle," a farce comedy on Communistic life in Russia. The plot of this drama is motivated when two fellows who room together (John Tierney '42 and Michael Touloumtzis '44) get married on the same day without telling each other. Complications arise when each of the men finds that he has more in common with the other's wife than with his own. A curtain, set up to make two rooms out of one, serves only to intensify the conflict. The characterization of one of the women (Dorothy Mathews '42) as a stolid Communist and the other (Joanne Lowther '41) as a frivolous "bourgeois" brings out the desired satirical effect. This was a student-directed play; Rowena Fairchild '41 was in charge, assisted by Elizabeth Swann '41.

Turning from satire, the Players next gave their version of a Gay Nineties melodramatic comedy called "Caste." As the title suggests, this drama deals with the troubles resulting from the marriage of a poor girl (Eleanor Davis '42) to a man of high social status (Ralph Tuller '42). Sidelights of the central theme are: the antics of the heroine's drunkard father (Montrose Moses '41); the touching love affair of her sister (Constance Roy '41) with a plumber (Charles Buck '42); and the conscription of her husband into the army. In reviving this old timer, the Players took the license of caricaturing Victorian affectation by their intentionally artificial gestures and expressions. This atmosphere was further developed between the acts by wasp-waisted maidens and a male quartet, ballet dancing and audience singing, and the selling of pop and popcorn.

More serious was the next offering of the dramatists—a Galsworthy piece, "Escape." The tensely emotional experiences of an escaped convict form the story of the play. His contacts with different types of people and their attitudes toward him afford an interesting cross section of human nature. Jack Senior '42 carried the heavy lead role for this production, and was supported by a large cast.

The final performance of the year was a Shakespearean drama, "The Taming of the Shrew." Constance Roy '41 and John Marsh '43 headed the cast. As usual, this was a late spring affair, being repeated by the seniors during Commencement Week.

Such a varied program of plays represents much in time and effort spent, but the value received in training for those who take part, and in enjoyment both for participants and patrons, more than compensates for the work involved.

Our Service Leaders

PERFORMING their many and varied duties without fuss or fame, members of the service groups are a valuable asset to the college community.

Perhaps the greatest number of campus interests is served by the Christian Association. All students are touched by the extensive program carried on by this organization. Work is divided among ten commissions, the heads of which constitute the Cabinet. There are commissions for Freshmen, Religion, Deputations, Social Action, Campus Service, Community Service, Conferences, Peace, Social Activities, and Publicity. Orientation of freshmen is accomplished by a Freshman Week program and the publishing of a Handbook. Vesper services, chapel speakers, deputations, and a missionary campaign are carried on. Topics and problems of the day are discussed in surveys, on trips, at lectures and bull-sessions. A second-hand book store and infirmary service are maintained for the convenience of the campus community; charitable work in cooperation with local institutions is of help to the twin-city community; a peace program, and representation at national and international conferences are an approach to problems of the world community. Social activities consist of Chase Hall open houses, game tournaments, and weekly dances. The Association is affiliated with the National Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. Freshman workers on the various commissions are organized separately as the Freshman Cabinet. This group serves as a nucleus around which future regular Cabinets are formed.

Closely akin to the C. A. is the Christian Service Club, membership in which is limited to those actively interested in religion. Discussions of religious problems are led by members and outside speakers. The club is active in local church schools and young peoples' groups, and in the support of missionaries. Members serve on deputation teams under the guidance of the C. A. Deputation Commission. Social activities round out the club's program.

Service of a different sort is rendered by the Outing Club. With the campus located in the heart of "Vacationland," this all-college organization is able to present a full schedule of outdoor activities. It starts where the more formal program of the Athletic Association leaves off. In the fall, mountain climbs are conducted; this year parties went up the trails of Saddleback, Tumbledown, and Chocorua. Leading winter events are the Winter Carnival and the ski trips; the carnival is one of the outstanding week-ends of the college year. Highlights of the spring are the canoe trips in Northern Maine and the Memorial Day Cruise in Casco Bay. Cabin parties and open houses are provided for during all seasons at the two cabins maintained by the club at Thorncrag and Sabattus. A skating rink is also kept in condition by members. Equipment such as skis, snowshoes, and toboggans are supplied for those desiring them. Although every student is a member of the club, its activities are administered by a Board of Directors and a Junior Body.

Still more boosters of Bates are found in the Clason Key. This small group spreads the name of the college among high and prep schools all over New England. It also cooperates with the administration and with various student clubs in planning the reception of sub-freshmen who visit the campus for a preview of college life. The club encourages all undergraduates to help out in this endeavor to attract students of high caliber to the college.

Such is the thankless work of the service groups. But members of these organizations do not ask for praise. In genuine altruistic manner, their satisfaction comes from the realization of having done their bit in keeping high the standards of Bates.

Our Linguists

AS a supplement to the formal courses in German, French, Greek, and Latin, foreign language clubs are maintained. These groups serve the three-fold purpose of: providing additional acquaintance with the peoples and literatures; bringing together in a pleasantly informal atmosphere students and professors with common interests; and encouraging proficiency in the languages.

For German enthusiasts, two organizations are in operation. Der Deutsche Verein strives to reproduce old German "Gemütlichkeit" through appropriate parties and programs. Delta Phi Alpha is a chapter of a national honorary society, and its primary function is the public recognition of outstanding students in German.

A similar arrangement is found in the French department. Customs of the French people are practiced and discussed by members of La Petite Academie. Its companion club, the honorary Classically-minded students are provided for by the presence of Greek and Latin organizations. The Phil-Hellenic Club fosters an appreciation for Greek culture, old and new, both by word and deed. One sample of the latter is the annual joint meeting with a local Greek society. The course followed by Sodalitas Latina is unique in that its efforts are concentrated on problems of high school Latin teaching. To this end, study and discussions take precedence over social affairs.

Membership in these language clubs is a practical projection of classroom theory. It shows the student how "they" think and act. Such cosmopolitanism is badly needed in the world today.

Our Scientists

SIMILAR in function to the language clubs, the science groups aim to elaborate on regular classroom information. This system affords students an opportunity to make their notes more meaningful by presenting practical applications of textbook principles. The informal and cooperative spirit which characterizes the discussion of these matters resembles some of the effects gained from a "conference plan" of study. Facts and figures are made more realistic in the natural atmosphere which prevails at the meetings of these organizations.

The Jordan Scientific Society answers the needs of men majoring in four departments—biology, geology, mathematics, and physics. The club's varied make-up is one of its chief advantages; the mutual exchange of ideas makes for a broadening of the individual's knowledge, which is also deepened by the absorption of new material dealing with his own major subject. Illustrative of the type of program carried on by this group is the list of speakers, which this year included such men as a state chemist and an industrial engineer, and students talking on such topics as "Mineralogy" and "Mathematical Tricks."

Women scientists on campus, not to be denied, maintain an organization of their own, the Ramsdell Scientific Society, which is designed largely after the Jordan Sci. pattern. In their attempt to stimulate interest and keep abreast with recent discoveries, members of this group plan trips, obtain professors or local people as speakers, and do some research work themselves. A talk by Dr. Lawrance on "Chemistry in War" and one by Dr. Thomas on "Nutrition" were among this year's program offerings.

More exclusive in its make-up is the Lawrance Chemical Society with membership limited to majors in chemistry. The common background of this group enables it to apply its efforts to more technical subjects, such as "Wood Distillation," "Solvents," and "Poisons," all of which were considered this year. But the club is not narrow-minded; besides the chemical discussions there is also some time given over to other scientific projects. Even further, it is a custom of the group to include in its schedule of speakers a representative from the A. B. department. This year, Dr. Sweet gave a talk on "The Scientific Method in the Social Sciences."

Climaxing the activities of these three clubs is the Biennial Science Exhibition. This year's two-night show lived up to previous high standards and attracted hundreds of visitors from surrounding towns and schools. Some of the many features of the demonstration were: a thermite incendiary bomb, a Tesla coil, a stroboscope, an artificial geyser, a glass blowing exhibit, and an amateur radio station. Acting as chairmen of the various departments were the following seniors: Montrose Moses and Paul Wright, biology; Finley Cogswell, chemistry; Irving Fisher, geology; Hermon Tripp, mathematics; Clyde Glover, physics.

A fourth organization which may be classified under the broad heading of science is the Politics Club. During the past year many weighty problems have been brought before this group, what with national and international current events being headlined by a presidential election and a world war. Straw votes, panel discussions, and lectures are the instrumentalities used in an attempt to reach a clearer understanding of such questions. But the club is not only concerned with political matters; it also embraces the other social sciences—economics, sociology, and history. Problems which can not be dealt with in the classroom may be approached at meetings of this organization. Thus it is that this and the other science groups serve more as co-curricular than as extracurricular activities.

CREATIVE art is the concern of four extra-curricular groups on campus. Both pictorial and literary expression are fostered by these organizations.

The Camera Club, as its name implies, deals with the art of picture-making. From talks, demonstrations and discussions, members may absorb many new ideas for improving their photographic technique. This year, lantern-slide lectures, movies, and talks on color photography and composition were feature program attractions. An opportunity to put these principles into practice was offered, since several of the club's meetings took the form of laboratory sessions. Individual instruction in developing, printing, and enlarging were given to those who desired it. More advanced work included such projects as portraiture, table-top photography, and the making of photographic Christmas cards. The club sponsored a contest during the spring months which was open to the entire college.

Another group operating in the interests of pictorial art is the Art Club, which acts as a clearing house for posters to advertise campus affairs, and illustrations for the publications.

Literary expression is the domain of the Spofford Club. Prose and poetry of members and non-members are read at the meetings. Discussion of these manuscripts helps the writer find his weaknesses and helps the listeners develop habits of constructive criticism. The club does not confine itself, though, to this one line of activity. Talks on literature, music, and drama are included on the program calendar. Informality of atmosphere is obtained by holding meetings at professors' homes and by conducting occasional cabin parties.

Closely allied to this organization is the Poetry Club. Members of this group also strive to improve their work by mutual criticism.

Those who find enjoyment in the artistic creation of pictures or paintings, prose or poetry, are well provided for by these clubs.

FULLER realization of college opportunities by off-campus students is encouraged by two organizations. Lambda Alpha performs the function for the women. Its program is designed to interest members in extracurricular activities and to offer a substitute for dormitory life as well as foster friendship among the members themselves. The club sponsors monthly supper meetings at the Women's Union, wiener roasts, cabin parties, and sleigh rides. Its Tea Dance, a pre-Christmas affair, has earned a regular place on the college social calendar. The club maintains a "Town Room" on campus, where members may study, gather for social functions, and mingle with dormitory co-eds. This year another plan was adopted whereby each member may stay one night at a dorm free of charge. The organization has representation on the Women's Student Government Board. Male "Townies" are serviced by the Off-Campus Men's Club, which runs various social events and organizes teams for competition in the intramural athletic league.

Keeping in step with advancing technology, Bates offers a flight training program under the auspices of the Civil Aeronautics Authority. Men who take the course, along with other male students interested in aviation, are organized as the Flying Club. The activities of this group are carried on in conjunction with the regular training course, and different phases of aviation are discussed by outside speakers. One feature this year was the showing of movies which explained the work done by Army and Navy pilots. The ultimate aim of the club is participation in air meets sponsored by the National Intercollegiate Flying Club, with which it is affiliated.

ALTERNATING between victory and defeat, the 1940 football team kept the Monday morning quarterbacks in a constant state of bewilderment. Coached by Wendell Mansfield, in what turned out to be his last season, and led by Captain Mike Buccigross, the team proved to be a hard-fighting combination which won three and lost four games. After breaking even in early season games by beating A. I. C. and Tufts, and losing to New Hampshire and Northeastern, Bates went into the State Series. Here they tripped Maine in the opener, only to lose to Bowdoin and Colby.

The season began with a 20–14 last-minute win over American International on September 28 at Garcelon Field. After A. I. C. had scored in the first period, Bates came to life and reached the two-foot line in the second quarter, only to be stopped by half time. As the second half began, the score was tied by a passing attack, then Mike Buccigross capitalized on an intercepted pass to put Bates ahead 13–7. In the final period, A. I. C. brought the count up to 14–13 with only four minutes to play. Once more Captain Mike, aided by Artie Belliveau, put the pressure on and the final score stood 20–14. Undisputed star of the game was Buccigross, who scored all twenty of the Garnet points.

At New Hampshire, October 5, the Bobcats received their first defeat of the season, by a 27–6 score. After the Wildcats scored once, Bates threatened three times in the first and second periods but to no avail. After the half, New Hampshire came back to score three times in quick succession, bringing the score in the final minutes to 27–0. A pass from Flanagan to Julie Thompson in the end zone was the bright spot of the game for the Bates rooters, with the scoreboard reading 27–6 at the close of the game.

Columbus Day found the Garnet on the upgrade via a 12–7 win over a favored Tufts team at Medford. The Jumbo outfit led the way with a two-play touchdown in the second period, only to have the score brought up to 7–6 as a result of forty-six yards of tricky playing, which allowed Jim O'Sullivan to go over the line. Late in the same period Jim attempted a field goal, only to have the ball go under the bar. After a see-sawing third period in which Tufts threatened but did not score, Bates came back in the fourth with O'Sullivan attempting another field goal. The kick was blocked but Flanagan fell on the ball in the end zone to give Bates a 12–7 victory.

A week later, October 19, at Northeastern, the Bobcats met defeat for the second time in the season. Outplaying the Huskies the first quarter, the men of Bates were able to score only in the second period when O'Sullivan place-kicked the Garnet to a 3–0 lead. The second half found Northeastern in possession of the field. After the Huskies had brought the score around to 6–3 in their favor, Bates attempted a counter-attack which was unsuccessful. Again in the last quarter the Huskies, aided by an intercepted pass, marked up six points, leaving the Bobcats to head back for the State Series with a 12–3 defeat behind them.

Backed by a train-load of Bates rooters released by a college holiday, the Garnet team commenced the series auspiciously with a 7–6 win over Maine at Orono on October 26. As threatening as the sky, which sent snow flurries at intervals, the Bobcats twice drove deep into the Maine line in the first period, but failed to score. Early in the second quarter, another drive found the Pale Blue backed against their own line where they held the Garnet. A Bates fumble late in the same perod, coupled with a pass into the end zone, gave Maine a 6–0 lead. Sigsbee broke through to prevent the all-important conversion. The second half found the Black Bear holding tenaciously to its six point lead while the Bobcats repeatedly attempted to overtake it. Finally Gorman and Belliveau worked the ball down to the fifteen yard marker by some superb passing. After a fierce fight in the shadow of the Maine goal, Belliveau in an off-tackle play, crossed the line to tie the score. Buccigross made a perfect drop-kick to send Bates home victorious, 7–6.

A powerful team from Bowdoin, aided by a rain-soaked field, disappointed a large Back-to-Bates crowd on November 2, and returned home with a 12–2 victory. Bogged down in the mud, the Bobcats were unable to open their air attack. The Polar Bears scored first in the initial period after a long march down the field to the Bates line where they were held, but briefly. The second quarter saw Brud Witty tackle Bell behind his own line to give the Garnet its only two points. Bowdoin came back almost immediately with the final score of the day, leading Bates 12–2. The remainder of the game settled into dogged fighting, broken only by the brilliant runs of Belliveau, which Bowdoin managed to stop each time.

On Armistice Day, Bates played host to Colby, only to have the visitors go home with a 12–7 victory, and the series co-title. After seven minutes of play, O'Sullivan crossed the line to give the Garnet a 6–0 lead which Captain Buccigross immediately drop-kicked to 7–0. Midway through the second quarter Colby brought the score up to 7–6 but failed to tie it up. Both teams threatened once in the third period, but it was not until the last quarter that the Mules went ahead. The Bobcats rallied again, but Colby held the score at 12–7 until the final whistle of the 1940 season.

Seniors who hung up jerseys and spikes for the last time that day were Captain Mike Buccigross, Hal Beattie, Art Belliveau, John Daikus, Noah Edminster, Harry Gorman, Jim O'Sullivan, Al Topham, and Brud Witty. Belliveau, Parmenter, and Topham were named to various All-Maine teams, while Buccigross, O'Sullivan, and Gorman also received mention.

VARSITY
CROSS COUNTRY

SECOND ROW: Charlton (Mgr.), McLauthlin, Borden, Corbett, Drury, Nickerson, Sawyer, Thompson (Coach).

Cross Country

OPENING the harrier season was a meet with New Hampshire. This resulted in a 20–45 win for the visitors, but individual honors went to Bob McLauthlin. Nickerson, Corbett, and Drury also looked promising in this initial meet.

A similar fate was realized in the next meet. Northeastern took it by a 22–36 score, but McLauthlin came in first. Drury placed fifth, while Grimes and Nickerson completed the Garnet score.

Continuing his winning streak, McLauthlin captured the state title at the Augusta Country Club on October 25. Maine won the annual quadrangular meet, giving second to Bates, with Bowdoin and Colby trailing. Again Captain Drury and Nickerson finished well up in front with Corbett and Grimes not too far behind.

Playing host to Bowdoin on the last day of October, the Garnet harriers took over the Polar Bears 25–30. The features of this meet were the finish in which McLauthlin and Drury collaborated to give the fans a dead heat finish well ahead of the Bowdoin outfit, and the fine showing of Corbett who ran one of the best races of his career.

At Colby on November 4, the Bobcats again were victorious, in spite of the fact that McLauthlin did not compete. Captain Drury took his place, leading the harriers home to a 17–30 victory, in which Nickerson and Corbett again contributed points.

Franklin Park, in Boston, was the scene of disaster for Bob McLauthlin. Running well in the New England meet on November 11, Bob stepped into a hole and wrenched his back. Alternately walking and running, he managed to come in fortieth. It is interesting to note that Parker of Northeastern, whom McLauthlin had previously beaten, came in third, showing what might have been but for Lady Luck. Bates took tenth place in this meet.

VARSITY BASKETBALL
SECOND ROW: Sturgis, King, Coach Mansfield, Monk, Boyan.
FRONT ROW: Flanagan, Raymond, Gorman, Witty, Webster, Raftery.

Basketball

THIS season's varsity basketball squad, piloted by co-captains Witty and Gorman, fought rival teams to the last whistle, only to lose more than its share of close battles. The final reckoning shows the Bobcat hoopmen winning three and losing ten contests. Not too impressive a showing, but there were many one and two point losses, and good teams they were that pushed the Bobcat over to the losing column. Hartwick, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Northeastern fell before the Garnet scorers. Providence, Boston University, Worcester Tech, Colby twice, Maine twice, St. Anselm, New Hampshire, and Clark—these are the teams that nipped the Bates outfit.

Don Webster, Red Raftery, Harry Gorman and Brud Witty were outstanding senior members of this season's squad; Raftery, Gorman, and Webster especially seemed to have lost none of their former scoring ability. Dick Raymond also played well for the varsity this year. Underclass members of the squad were Tom Flanagan of the junior class, and Boyan, Sturgis, King, and Monk of the sophomore class.

The season had hardly started when Head Coach Leslie Spinks, a National Guard officer, was summoned by the Army for active duty. The season opener therefore was to be a farewell gift for Coach Buck. And such it was, the Garnet emerging from the fracas ahead 36–25. Hartwick which ran a lead of a few points during the first half, was the team selected for the kill. The Bates hoopsters soon piled up a lead in the second half and maintained it throughout the remainder of the game. Webster and Gorman, along with a sensational sophomore Norm Boyan, who was to give the fans many a thrill as the season progressed, were the high scorers for the Bates team. The Bobcat looked to be on the way through a highly successful season.

The southern trip, however, which started soon after the opening tussle, turned out to be a failure from the point of view of victories. First the courtsters at Boston University sank the Bates quintet 49–31. Then Providence, where the Bobcat was avalanched 45–22. The trip ended at Worcester, Bates losing a veritable heartbreaker to the Tech team 39–37.

Back on the home court, after the postponement of the Colby tussle on account of an influenza epidemic, Bates played host to the University of Maine, and was again set back, by the typically close score of 46–41. The Garnet held a slim lead to the half, only to be passed in the last by a strong Black Bear. The contest was fast and close all the way, a tough one to lose.

Then two more quick heart-breakers followed in quick succession just before mid-year exams, with St. Anselms and with Maine. Bates came out on the short end, with a one and a two-point loss.

Good news for a change heartened the Bates fans, after the hoopmen had put the exam schedule behind. The M. I. T. engineers came to campus and were put in the background. The Bobcat played well and steady, and was never seriously in trouble throughout the game. Then the Northeastern Huskies burst into town, and on the Lewiston Armory floor were trounced by the comfortable margin of twelve points. Here sophomores Boyan and King were impressive as high-scorers.

This turned out, unfortunately, to be the last taste of victory for the Bobcat five. For Colby, with an unblemished record for the entire season, brought a battling team over and beat the Bates quintet, although not by too big a score. Incidentally, the Mule high-scorer, Rimosukas, one of the State's best, was successfully bottled-up in the second half of this game by some of the Bobcat's most brilliant defensive playing of the season.

The second out-of-state trip followed, and turned out as unsuccessful in wins as the first. New Hampshire and Clark claimed victory here.

In the season's finale Bates played off the postponed Colby game, and although scoring was kept down, a steady offensive was lacking, and the Bobcats lost out 34–27.

As for an off-season view of the next Garnet basketball squad, the fans shouldn't be too dismal. For although four first-string players will graduate, there is ample evidence of capability in the present lower classes. It would seem at a glance that the 1941–42 team would be dominated by sophomores and juniors, since Flanagan and Shiff will probably be the only members of 1942 out. But King, a brilliant defensive and an offensive player with plenty of surprises; Boyan, spectacular, constantly worrying the opposition with the threat of that overhead shot; and Monk, deadly accurate in the close shots, are a 1943 trio well worth plenty of watching when the next hoop season rolls around.

Setting aside for a moment the point-blank summary of wins and losses for the year, in individual games the Bobcats didn't do badly. For the lovers of the sport as a sport, anyway, some excellent basketball was witnessed at the games fought by the Garnet. The flashing red-haired Raftery, the spectacular, accurate Webster, the hard fighting Gorman, and the steady, calm Witty; all played a fast, brilliant type of basketball that never failed to please the court fans. They are the graduating four, whose places will certainly be hard to fill.

WINTER SPORTS

Winter Sports

ALTHOUGH the winter sports ski team, under Win Durgin, was small this year as in the past, and had but few meets, yet it boasted as enthusiastic a group of members as could be found in any sport. The team this year competed in a dual meet with the University of Maine, the Maine State College Meet, and in the annual Intercollegiate Ski Union Meet, winning the first two and placing second in the latter. Altogether a good showing for a small team.

The leading skiers in this year's competition were Bill Lever, specializing in the cross-country events, Julie Thompson in downhill, Dave Sawyer in cross-country, Frank Jones in the slalom, and Wally Flint, a good all-round man, but outstanding in jumping.

The first event of the season was the usual dual meet scheduled for Carnival week-end against the University of Maine, held despite unfavorable weather. The Garnet snowmen avenged the previous year's defeat by coming out well ahead of their opponents.

The annual meet for the intermediate division of the Intercollegiate Ski Union, including seven other Eastern colleges on its roster of competitors, was to have been held early in February at Bridgton. A few teams did show up on the appointed date, only to find a premature spring thaw in progress. The meet was finally held in March with Massachusetts State and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology the only competitors to arrive besides Bates. The Maine State College meet was run off at the same time, with Bates and Maine fighting it out alone.

In the I. S. U. competiton M. I. T. came out ahead with a combined score of 580.97, and Bates placed second with a score of 563.86. In the Maine College event, Bates ended ahead of the Orono team with 573.86 points against 563.86.

Julie Thompson was not only the outstanding performer for Bates; his skiing exhibition was a highlight of the weekend's activity. In both competitions, Julie took first place in the downhill event. He also took first place in the slalom against Maine, and second in the jumping event in both competitions. Flint and Sawyer also turned in good records for the slalom.

Bill Lever did his usual good job in the cross-country event taking second place against Maine, and third in the I. S. U. affair. Wally Flint turned in a remarkable race here too, in spite of the fact that he covered most of the distance with a broken ski. General prospects for the next season are good, with only Bill Lever graduating.

TRACK SQUAD

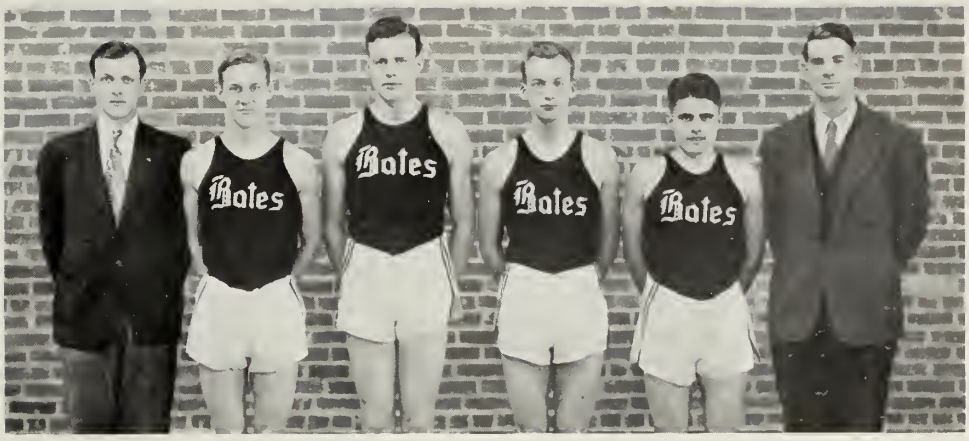
Track

IN an indoor and outdoor season in which the Bates varsity track team was not favored with too many wins, the representatives of the Garnet accounted for themselves quite well. Despite somewhat of an unbalanced array of talent—notably in the pole vault—each of the three upper classes has offered material of quality. The senior contribution to the team takes the form of H. Boothby, Captain Drury, Houston, and Webster. The juniors are represented by Mabee, Nickerson, Parmenter, and Sigsbee. Those sophomores of merit include Borden, Comly, C. Howarth, Lyford, McLauthlin, Matzilevich, M. Thompson, and Tufts.

January 18 found the Bobcats opening their indoor track season to be defeated in their first effort of the year by a strong Northeastern University team. Two meet records were broken that afternoon, one by Prohodsky of Northeastern who did the two-mile run in 9:56:4 and the other by our own Dave Nickerson when he clipped a second from the 1000-yard run to win in 2:22:1. Bates swept the 300-yard race when Lyford and Mabee tied for first and Elden Boothby took third.

On January 25, the mile relay team represented Bates at the Knights of Columbus meet in Boston and showed their heels to the Northeastern and Wesleyan quarters to pull down a time of 3:31:3. Those wearing the colors of the Garnet were Mabee and Nickerson of '42 and Lyford and McLauthlin of '43. The two former members of the relay team had already participated in this meet during their sophomore years and still have another year in which to take comparable honors.

At Boston, on February 8, our team lost one of the best mile relay races of the night in the annual B. A. A. meet. While trailing Rhode Island State and leading Syracuse, the team composed of Lyford, McLauthlin, Nickerson and Mabee, in that order, won a moral victory when they ran the fastest time any Bates team has ever run in the Boston Garden, 3:27 4/5.



VARSITY RELAY TEAM
(Asst. Mgr.) Levine, Lyford, Nickerson, Mabee, McLaughlin, Thompson (Coach)

On February 21, the Garnet tracksters journeyed to Bowdoin and were defeated in their second meet of the year. A brighter light is thrown on the situation when it is noted that Captain Drury and Lyford broke meet records. The former broke the two-mile record in the time of 10:07:1; while the latter covered the 600-yard distance in 1:14:4. Lyford also won the 300-yard event. A third meet record was shattered by Huling of Bowdoin who broad jumped 22′7″. Other winners were McLauthlin in the mile, Webster in the high jump and discus, Sigsbee in the shot-put, and H. Boothby in the 35-pound weight throw.

The varsity suffered its third defeat at the University of Maine on March 1. Winners in this meet were McLauthlin in the mile and 1000 and Mabee in the 600—both consistent point gainers.

In the final meet of the indoor season Bates trimmed Colby in our cage. One cage record and four meet records were broken on that memorable afternoon. Peters of Colby broke the high jump cage record by leaping 6′2⅞″. Bob McLauthlin deserves superlatives for cutting four seconds off the meet record in the 1000-yard run and coming within 1/5 of a second of the cage record. Other meet records broken during the course of the meet were the 300 by Lyford, the 600 by Mabee, and the broad jump by Daggett of Colby. Bates swept the weight events with 24 points out 27.

The outdoor intercollegiate varsity track season began on April 26, at which time Bates was rendered a defeat by the Bowdoin aggregation. Highlights of the afternoon were to be found in the five new records which were set. Dickinson of Bowdoin set new marks in the 440 and 220 while one of his teammates, Huling, broke the broad jump record with a leap of 21′¼″. Mathews, also of Bowdoin equalled the 100-yard record. Other new marks were set by McLauthlin who clipped about three seconds from the old time; while Nickerson ran a brilliant race and did about two seconds better than the old record in the half mile.

Despite numerous first places in the meet against M. I. T. on May 3 in Garcelon field, Bates got the short end of the count in an interesting competition. The Tech men's high score can be accounted for by a sweep in four events. Four men during the course of the meet scored double wins. To begin this feat, Dave Nickerson won the 400 and 880. Deserving of much praise was Sigsbee's wins in the shot-put and discus. On the Tech side of the fence Jester won the 220 low hurdles and 120 high hurdles; while Hensel won the 100 and 220-yard dashes. Other first places won by Bates men were the two-mile by Captain Drury, the broad jump by Lyford, and the mile run by Bob McLauthlin.

In a star-studded state meet in which the University of Maine swamped its competitors, Bates runners, Drury and McLauthlin, were nosed out in two of the most thrilling races of the day, the 2-mile and mile runs, respectively. Dave Nickerson ran a marvelous race to garner the only Bates win of the occasion. Having been a consistent point winner all season, Nickerson turned in the time of 2 minutes, 0.5 second to take over the state championship for the half mile run. The Bates team came out fourth best in this meet.

TENNIS TEAM

Tennis

WITH most of the tennis team veterans of previous years, there were prospects of a good season in view despite the loss of Kenney and Howland by graduation. Those who are now contributing their share to the welfare of the team are Co-captains Walsh, '41 and Whitten, '41—both able and experienced veterans. In addition there are Millerick '41, DeWitt '41, Quimby'42, Buker '43, and Watts '43.

The first three games of the season carried the Garnet south, and on successive days they lost to Rhode Island State, Brown University, and Tufts. On April 24, the Bates netmen played the first of these three matches, and Quimby garnered the only Bates victory in singles; while doubles teams composed of Walsh and Quimby, and Millerick and Buker swept their respective matches.

The next day the Bobcats played at Brown and Bill Buker was the only courtman to pull down a win. The southern tour ended against Tufts on April 26 when the team showed an improvement in playing but only managed to take two doubles matches with teams made up of Quimby and Walsh and Watts and Whitten. Walsh also played an outstanding brand of ball before being beaten in his singles match.

The team returned to the home courts on May 2 and 3 and was defeated in two successive matches against the University of New Hampshire and Tufts, respectively. Rain forced a halt to things on the first occasion before the doubles matches could be completed, but the singles matches had already been swept by the New Hampshire team.

Then, Bates succumbed to Tufts with Bill Buker spotlighted again as the only one winning his singles match; while two doubles teams composed of Quimby and Walsh, Buker and Millerick won their matches for the Garnet.

On May 7, the Bates net aggregation visited the Bowdoin courts and there suffered its first state defeat. In a well played match, the old standbys, Buker in the singles and the Walsh Quimby combination in the doubles came through to win the only matches for the Lewiston school.

Again on May 9 the Bobcats engaged in another match which they lost to the Colby mules. It was Watts this time who came up to win the only Bates singles match of the day and two combinations of doubles, Watts and Whitten and Quimby and Walsh took their matches before the rains came and halted one other doubles match.

VARSITY BASEBALL

Baseball

WHEN the call for baseball came in 1941, a strong club of veterans was found to be in the offing. There were only two holes to be filled—one caused by the graduation of Hastie Thompson who had formerly filled the position at third base and the other behind the plate, caused by the absence of veteran Jim O'Sullivan because of illness.

When the 19th of April rolled around, it found the first game of the Bates' baseball season being played. Though only an exhibition game, it presented somewhat of a preview. This contest, with Bowdoin in the visitor's role, ended in a victory for the Garnet. Webster started the game with Jameson as his battery mate, but in the eighth inning Matragrano, with Mullet as catcher, took over and pitched wonderful ball until the game's end. Thus, Matragrano was credited with his first win of the year. Belliveau broke up the game in the last of the ninth when he doubled to center with Mullet on second to break the 2–2 tie.

The team then visited Tufts, Worcester Polytechnic, Boston University, and Northeastern University on successive days and increased the win streak to five straight games—that is, until the damper was thrown on by Northeastern.

At Tufts, Don Webster started the game and was once again replaced by Mike Matragrano who was credited with his second win of the season. The batting power was strong with Belliveau, Josselyn, brothers Dick and Julie Thompson, and Witty accounting for the telling hits.

When the team moved on to Worcester Polytechnic, Shiff was given credit for the victory after replacing Matragrano in the fifth inning. Kyp Josselyn did well for himself when he got three hits out of three times at bat. Julie Thompson and Del Johnson, likewise, made timely hits.

The following afternoon the Bates nine took Boston University over the hurdles. It was Al Wight who pitched the whole game and did nobly, allowing only eight scattered hits while striking out seven. Two other shining lights on the team were Lou Hervey who got four hits in six times at bat and Del Johnson with three for five and one of those a double.

Then came the first defeat of the season—at Northeastern University. Dave Shiff was given the count as the losing pitcher after being touched for twelve hits. Witty doubled in the sixth after a pair of walks to put Bates in the scoring column. Thus ended a very successful Southern trip which is said to have been the best that Bates has had in several years. When the boys returned to campus, it was noted that the leading hitters were R. Thompson, H. Johnson, Josselyn, and Hervey in that order.

In their first series game against the University of Maine on April 30, the Garnet moved back into the win column. Don Webster pitched superb ball and ended the game with only one hit chalked up against him. Helping the cause along was Brud Witty with a triple and Del Johnson with the first homer of the season. Hervey and Josselyn also added their parts in getting hits to boost the Bobcat win.

On May 3, the Bates team ventured up to Waterville and were the recipients of their first state series defeat and second defeat of the season. In an overtime game in which both Matragrano and Webster saw action, Bates was out-hit and responsible for four errors. Slattery and Peters of the opposition accounted for eight hits between them—four doubles and four singles, collectively. Del Johnson led the Bates stickmen by getting three hits for five times at bat, Dick Thompson being the only other man getting more than one hit.

The third state series game for the varsity nine on May 5 against Bowdoin resulted in another defeat. Al Wight began the pitching duties only to be relieved by Mike Matragrano in the eighth. Brud Witty was responsible for three of Bates' eight hits, and in comparison to that, Bowdoin collected fifteen hits.

On May 7, the Bates varsity met the University of Maine nine again and defeated them. Webster, who seems to be a jinx to Maine, held them scoreless after the third inning. The Bobcats were out-hit 7–9, but Maine also tallied three more errors than the Garnet. Downes of Maine collected three of the hits that Webster gave up; while Bates' Kyp Josselyn was the only member of our team to get more than one hit. Dick Thompson banged out the only homer of the game though at the time no one was on base.

In their fifth series game of the season against Bowdoin on May 9th, Bates suffered a loss which lessened our chances for the state title. Al Wight was caught short on a 9–4 count when rain stopped the game after 6½ innings. The highlight of the afternoon was Del Johnson's perfect day at bat when he made three hits for three times at bat and one of them a double.

Don Webster kept his anti-U. of M. record clean by pitching the Bates team to a 6–2 win over the Bears on May 14.

A wide-open tilt with Colby on May 16 found the Bobcats running away to the tune of 22–9.

Varsity Club

ALTHOUGH its membership is limited to those men who have won athletic letters, the Varsity Club sponsors many campus activities outside of the sport line. The group really takes over the campus and attracts the most attention to itself during the annual periods of initiation when new members are admitted to the organization and put through their paces prior to formal admittance. Actually this is but a small part of the work of the Varsity Club.

The club operates in entertaining visiting teams while at Bates and in contacting new students and athletes for the college. A great deal of valuable work has been done along these lines in the past. Ushers and officials for games and meets are furnished by the group. This past year Varsity Club ushers were in evidence at the Western Maine Basketball tourney and at the Edward-Little-Bangor state championship game. Timers and scorers were also chosen from the club for those games.

The Sunday night smokers to which all men of the college are invited were initiated by the organization. Local sports writers, coaches, and officials are also invited to these smokers in an effort to promote better relations between the college and local interests. Motion pictures of noteworthy sports events are shown at these meetings. The Georgetown-Boston College game was shown at one of the smokers this year.

The "Back to Bates" dance and a formal dance in May for the members of the club are also sponsored. These dances and the blotters distributed in the fall serve as the income of the Varsity Club. This enables the group to operate without dues and to donate needed athletic equipment to the school.

A new activity undertaken this year by the Varsity Club is that of acting as "plane spotters" in connection with national defense plans. Mount David as the vantage point locally is within easy access of the club members serving in this connection.

Intramurals

UNDER Co-ordinator Wally Driscoll intramurals have enjoyed a highly successful season this past year. Although there still seems to be a glaring need for more funds to be used in purchasing equipment for intramurals, the slate has been well-received and a very good representation of the fellows has been active in one sport or another. Touch football, hockey, basketball, and softball have been the sports offered on the intramural roster. As in the past, awards have been made to the winning teams as well as to individual members of those teams.

In the fall touch football was the by-word in the interdorm contests. The Off-Campus club produced the most punch in this field and proceeded to go through the season undefeated to annex the title. West Parker and East Parker both put stout outfits on the field, but the townies were just too strong. An all-star intramural team was selected at the end of the season. Don Webster of the town team was selected as the most valuable touch football player of the season. The first team was as follows: Backs and ends: Don Webster (OC), captain, Dick Thompson (OC), Al Wight (WP), Norm Boyan (WP), Junie Watts (WP), Bill Lever (OC). Tackles and center: Mike Matragano (EP), Tiny Boothby (ND), and Fred Whitten (ND).

Basketball proved to be the most popular of the winter competitions. East Parker's man power was sufficient to take the league in this sport. The East squad numbered three full teams which could be sent in as whole units thus practically running any other team into the floor. The New Dorm, led by Tiny Boothby while he was eligible, and JB, led by Lou Hervey, put up the stiffest games against the Parkerites of East. Hervey annexed individual scoring honors while Boothby was second. Tom Young (JB), Bob Cote (EP), and Clint Forstrom (ND) were three, four, and five, respectively. Every game on the slate was keenly contested and a great deal of interest was shown.

In the hockey set-up the New Dorm proved to be superior as they whittled all opposition down and snowed them under. Al Topham and Hal Beattie were the mainstays on the New Dorm aggregation. Other men who stood out in hockey were Junie Watts, Bob Sears, and Bill Donnellan of West and Al Aucoin of East.

The annual intramural track meet was held in the cage with the men from John Bertram coming out on top. The frosh turned out in force and proceeded to annex about everything in sight to become the title-holders.

The softball circuit is still in operation with Off-Campus and West Parker waging a close battle for top honors.

Freshman Sports

AN abundance of good material marked this fall's frosh football squad. In the first game of the season a powerful Kents Hill eleven was battled to a scoreless tie. The next contest saw the frosh running roughshod over Maine Central Institute to the tune of an 18–0 victory. This win enabled the frosh to discard their beloved caps. Still on the victory trail, the next game was frosh all the way as the team plowed Huntington under with a 33–0 defeat. In the last fracas the frosh stacked up against a superior team, Worcester Academy, and went down to defeat after battling every inch of the ground. The score was 13–0 with the Bobkittens on the short end of the count. All in all a highly successful season.

The frosh cross country team was not a brilliant outfit and found themselves victorious in only one meet. Co-captains Bert Smith and Art Higgins proved to be consistently good runners as they ended in the top few in each contest. Wilton Academy was the hapless team to fall before the yearling hill-and-dalers while the frosh themselves tasted defeat at the hands of Lisbon Falls, Lincoln Academy, Lisbon High, Portland High, Farmington, Winthrop, and Deering. Other Bobkitten harriers were Roberts, Crean, Keach, Meader, and Dyer. Smith and Higgins show particular promise and should bolster next year's cross country squad.

The Bobkitten hoopsters came out of the season with two victories and seven defeats. Stantial, Silverman, Card, Larochelle, Hoyt, and Gibson were the mainstays on the yearling hoop squad. The frosh emerged victorious over Deering and Winslow and were snowed under by Kents Hill twice, Hebron twice, South Portland, Bridgton, and Maine Central Institute. Two wins in nine starts is none too good a record to have attached to a team. Yet, several of the contests were close and hard-played and the Bobkittens bowed only after putting up the stiffest competition of which they were capable. Several of the courtsters of '44 seem likely to make strong bids for varsity positions next year.

The indoor trackmen of the Class of '44 were decidedly unsuccessful. Shea, Smith, Larrabee, Hoskin, Park, and Crean were the most consistent point-getters, usually got the coveted number one spot. The frosh cindermen won only one meet and dropped five. In a triple meet with South Portland and Deering the Bobkittens emerged victorious. Those squads which took the measure of the freshmen were Thornton, the sophomores in an interclass meet, Bowdoin, Maine, and Colby. The yearlings lacked balance, had few brilliant performers, but one or two men will be assets to the varsity squad of next year.

The baseball season is, of course, not completed as this article is being written. So far the frosh diamondeers have won three and lost one. They seem to pack plenty of power at the plate and also to field the ball well. A few of the boys have shown up exceptionally well to date. Among these have been Genetti, Melody, Young, Grant, Larochelle, and Card.

The spring track season is also unfinished. The yearling cindermen have done considerably better out of doors than they did in the cage. They have taken the interclass meet, a match with Bridgton and Portland, another with Brunswick and Cony, and still another over Hebron, Lewiston, and Rockland.

W. A. A. — Administration

WORKING quietly behind the broad sports program offered to women of Bates is the W. A. A. Board. With every co-ed a member of the Women's Athletic Association, the Board, by cooperating with Miss Lena Walmsley, Physical Education Director, strives to attain the goal of "a sport for every girl and a girl in every sport." Executive ability and a real interest in athletic participation mark the caliber of the group. Made up of girls chosen from the three upper classes, it arranges an extensive program that starts with the Sportland Tour in the fall and continues through the year with W. A. A. Week, the Hare and Hound Chase, Freshman Open House, High School Play Day, the Back-to-Bates Tea, Mothers' Week End, a cabin party, Health Week, an all-college roller skate, May Day Breakfast, Play Day, and a house party. Thus an effective combination of sports and social activity is achieved.

A more direct supervision of the various sports is carried on by the student Coaches. They are the ones who actually get out on the field to teach skills, referee games, and emphasize safety rules. Selected by the Board, these coaches are judged as to capability and reliability. Many prepare for their work by taking one of the courses in coaching given by the Physical Education Department. In this way, theory and practice are correlated. Student coaches take charge of nine different sports: field hockey, archery, tennis, modern dancing, basketball, winter sports, volleyball, baseball, and campcraft.

Either of these administrative groups—the Board or the Coaches—gives valuable experience to those who take active part in them. This holds true especially for the many who plan to become teachers after graduation.

Honorary

INCENTIVE to high achievement in women's athletics is provided by a system of honorary awards. Sportsmanship, interest, and ability are recognized through presentation of numerals, letters, seals, and loving cups.

One year of training with outstanding accomplishment is the basic requirement for the winning of numerals. Five per cent of the freshman women may be acknowledged in this way, and ten per cent of the sophomores.

Continued efforts along these same lines may lead to acceptance into the next highest honorary classification, that of the Letterwomen. Juniors and seniors only are admitted to this select group. Specific qualifications are a scholarship average of 2.2 or more, a posture grade of at least B, evidence of sportsmanship, ability, and interest, and regular attendance at practice sessions. Only nine juniors may receive letters; the number of seniors is left to the Committee.

Training awards are given to the highest scorer in each class for each successive year of training, and for four full years of training. This last brings the coveted Bates Seal.

The ultimate goal of every co-ed is the winning of one of the silver loving cups. A maximum of three seniors may be accorded this distinctive honor. The standards for this highest position on the W. A. A. honor roll include not only athletic achievement but also a well rounded development in all college activities.

One other honorary group is the roster of Tournament Winners. Intra- and inter-dorm competition in badminton and ping-pong determine the victors. Tournaments are also held in tennis and archery.

These various symbols of athletic enthusiasm and prowess are worthy objectives to strive toward. They represent qualities of health, character, and leadership.

Teams

SINCE intercollegiate sports are not offered to Bates women, and in order to prevent bitter class rivalries, a generalized system of competition is carried on. Each co-ed is assigned in her freshman year to one of two sides, "Garnet" or "Black," which designation she keeps during her four years. All sports operate according to this plan. When a season is nearly ended, the Garnet and Black teams are chosen by committees composed of the manager and coach of each sport and Garnet and Black representatives from each class. Three games are then played to decide the championship. Points thus won contribute to the running score kept of all the activities to determine which side wins the cup awarded at the end of the year.

Field Hockey is the main sport offered during the fall months. It is one of the most active games on the progam, calling for endurance, speed, and teamwork. The three-game series was nip and tuck this year. Opening the competition was an Armistice Day contest, which resulted in a 3–1 victory for the Garnets. An identical score was made in the next game, but was discounted since much of the play took place after sunset. The final tussle was a hard-fought affair, ending with a 3–3 tally. A post-season game, planned for Mothers' Week End, was rained out, but the players transferred to the field house and put on a mock game. Outfitted in all sorts of hilarious costumes, the contestants staged a real comedy for the mothers. But, nevertheless, the teams really worked and the 1–0 win of the Blacks was considered at least partial atonement for their regular season loss.

Volleyball is one of the winter-time sports. Although less strenuous perhaps than its companions, basketball and winter sports, it still provides plenty of exercise, enjoyment, and training in cooperation. Each gym class was divided into two teams this year and games were played three times a week. A new plan of having each member of a team responsible for the territory within arms-length added interest to the games. This arrangement also served to emphasize team spirit as opposed to desire for individual glory.

Baseball is fast coming into favor with the co-eds as a spring activity. A large group of enthusiasts turned out this year to try to master the techniques of the national pastime. Control of the ball proved to be the chief difficulty among many of the groups. Perhaps the most popular phase of the game was batting. All anxiously awaited their turn to step up to the plate in an endeavor to satisfy self-assertive propensities by swatting the ball off the diamond. Other spring sports are archery and tennis.

The program of women's athletics, consisting as it does of a wide variety of activities, should have appeal in one way or another for every co-ed on campus.

Clubs

SUPPLEMENTARY to the regular W. A. A. activities are the several sports clubs. These provide opportunities to venture into new sports or to improve techniques in those already tried.

The Dance Club functions as a medium of creative expression, with individual or group ideas given an outlet in stylized dance forms. Tempo is established for each theme by the piano, tom-tom, or just the tread of feet. Harmony and balance are achieved by the dynamics of the dance itself. The effort to put an idea into clear, rhythmic form is one that calls forth the skill and ingenuity of every member.

Because the fundamentals of modern dancing are so complex and require so much practice, an apprentice group has been formed, which works separately on difficult phases of the art. This plan gives newcomers valuable experience so that they fit into the club proper more smoothly and quickly.

Members of the club this year coached A. A. dancing, took part in the Mother's Week End program, the Physical Education Demonstration, and a program at the local Philharmonic Society.

The Basketball Club trains its members in coaching and refereeing, and offers practice in fundamental skills. Requirements for admission are interest, all-around enthusiasm and playing ability. The club meets each week, with two girls taking charge. Discussions are held concerning rules and practice. At midyears, members refereed interclass games, in cooperation with the A. A. Later the club sponsored and refereed the interdorm competition. This saw Rand Hall the final winner in a close series, with the club referees proving their training in judging and calling plays. Members of this group receive three-season credit for their efforts.

The annual demonstration of the Swimming Club took the form this year of a water pageant, in which the girls exhibited formation swimming and strokes. This performance was the result of many hours of practicing waltz and tandem swimming, as well as the ever-important strokes. In addition to the demonstration, highlights of the season included a splash party with non-members as guests. At one or two meetings water polo was played. Club members, meeting weekly at the Auburn Y, are granted five-season credit by the A. A.

The Ski Club, now officially called "Schneehasen" (Snowbunnies), stimulates interest and provides training in ski techniques. Members, admitted by tryouts, receive instruction from Coach Win Durgin. An attempt is made to increase the ability of the new members up to the standards of the veterans so that all may go on the ski trips sponsored by the organization. Besides self-improvement, the club also tries to promote interest among fellow students. Novices are frequently started off in the right direction by virtue of tips handed out by members of this group. Only one of the scheduled trips to surrounding trails was made this year, on account of adverse weather condition. The Cannon Mountain trail was the one on which the Bunnies had a chance to try out their checks and turns. Three-season credit is earned by members of the club. They meet twice a month and perform teaching duties at least once every three weeks.

These special interest clubs play a definite role in the Bates women's athletic system. They not only elaborate on regular physical education courses by furnishing some different and some more advanced skills, but they also act as service organizations helping to execute the many projects of the W. A. A. program.
